Course Objectives

The course addresses the key financial decisions faced by managers in the corporation and provides you with the analytical framework to resolve these issues. The course will cover basic financial tools and principles in a user-friendly format. The project will provide you with the opportunity to employ your newly-acquired tools using actual company data.

Required Text

Gitman, Lawrence J. and Sean Hennessey. "Principles of Corporate Finance," 2nd Canadian Edition, Pearson Education Canada Inc., 2004.

Financial Calculator

A financial calculator is recommended for this course. If you do not already own one, the Texas Instruments BAII PLUS is a great choice that is priced at approximately $45.

Evaluation

|                     |     |
|---------------------|-----|
| Midterm Examination | 40% |
| Final Examination   | 40% |
| Project/Assignment  | 20% |

Note: There will be no make-up midterm exam. If you miss the midterm examination and provide official documentation, then the weight of the midterm will be added to the final.

Classroom Expectations

Students are advised that attendance is not mandatory, but is strongly recommended. Similar to a second language, finance requires the student to learn large amounts of new vocabulary and hearing the finance terms frequently increases the student's comfort with the course material. If a student misses class, the web page and other students in the class should be the first alternatives in seeking information about missed coverage and content.

When students come to office hours, they should bring a copy of work they have performed and their specific questions.

Students are asked to show up for class on time and show respect to all members of the class. Phones and pagers should be turned off before class.
